UK Outlook for Monday 5 Jul 2021 to Wednesday 14 Jul 2021:
Unsettled and rather changeable conditions look most likely through the start of this period, bringing some sunny spells but also spells of rain or showers, which at times could be heavy and thundery. Temperatures generally rather warm or locally very warm in the sunniest areas. Through the new week, sunny spells and showers, or perhaps longer spells of rain are most likely across the southern half of the UK, with northern and eastern areas likely to experience the best of any fine and dry weather. Temperatures are most likely to be above normal, notably in any prolonged sunshine across parts of the northeast. Winds will at times be strong, with coastal gales in the west and northwest.
